The viewpoint of Drs. Kenneth J. Lynn and Erin Elliott at Post Falls Family Dental is that "Good dentistry is not simply fixing the teeth . . . it's also being concerned with a patient's overall health."

According to Dr. Lynn, dentistry has evolved into a science of soft tissue, hard tissue, cavity detection, heart disease therapy and diabetes therapy. Recent research suggests that periodontal (gum) disease is directly linked to heart disease and diabetes, and the skilled staff of Post Falls Family Dental takes special care to make sure their patients are in the best state of health possible. They use a proven soft tissue management program to treat gum disease quickly and effectively.

Tooth restoration and reconstruction has changed dramatically in the last few years. At Post Falls Family Dental Center, they are now able to use cosmetic dental methods to restore patients' teeth without crowns in a single visit using the most up-to-date materials. They also offer smile makeover treatment with veneers, as well as Invisalign® tooth straightening for adults, which provides a more esthetically pleasing alternative to conventional braces for minor tooth movement.

Dr. Lynn, who has been a dentist for over 15 years, earned a Doctor of Dental Surgery degree from the University of Washington. He and his associate Dr. Erin Elliott, who attended dental school at Creighton University in Omaha, NE, have recently moved to a new state-of-the-art facility in Post Falls. Their new location has allowed them to expand their hours and services.

"We would love to take the time to sit down and explore the many options available to give you the smile you have always wanted. Come visit or call to see what is possible in the world of modern dental care."
